

The military policy of Emperor Constantius II in the Near East provinces of the Empire in 337–350: The organizational structure of the Roman–Persian border and the problem of recruiting Mekhamadiev, E. A. Voennaya politika imperatora Konstantsiya II v blizhnevostochnykh provintsiyakh imperii v 337–350 gg.: Organizatsionnaya struktura rimsko-persidskoy granitsy i problema rekrutskogo nabora [The military policy of Emperor Constantius II in the Near East provinces of the Empire in 337–350: The organizational structure of the Roman–Persian border and the problem of recruiting], in: Proslogion: Studies in Medieval and Early Modern Social History and Culture, 2017. Vol. 3 (1). P. 159–183.

Evgeniy Aleksandrovich Mekhamadiev, doctor of History, senior lecturer of Medieval History Department, Institute of History, St. Petersburg State University (199034, Rossiya, Sankt-Petersburg, Mendelevskaya liniya, 5)
e.mekhamadiev@spbu.ru

Language: Russian

Key Words: late Roman Empire, Constantius II, Mesopotamia, fortresses, centurio, legion, vexillation, veterans, recruiting

URL: <http://proslogion.ru/31-mekhamadiev/>

